B.C. Political Crisis Boils With Premier Defiant Of Critics

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
VANCOUVER, B.C., Nov. 21.—Premier T. D. Pattullo's present determined battle to maintain the integrity of the Liberal Party in British Columbia against the thunder of an antagonistic press, is not his first stand in opposition to the principle of coalition government.

Mr. Pattullo is the oldest sitting member in the British Columbia legislature, having represented the Prince Rupert riding continuously since 1916. Named minister of lands by Premier Brewster, in 1916, he held that office until the Liberal government was defeated by the Conservatives in 1928 under Hon. S. F. Tolmie, when Mr. Pattullo inherited the leadership of the Liberal Party from the defeated Hon. Dr. MacLean.

Dr. Tolmie, uncertain of his ability to hold a Conservative government together, wished to form a coalition government. In this he had strong newspaper support.

But Mr. Pattullo refused flatly to participate in any such scheme although he was strongly criticised by the press and a large section of his own party for this refusal. His political sagacity, however, was powerfully vindicated in 1933, when he swept the province with a great Liberal majority.

He was again returned to power in 1937.

Mr. Pattullo went to the Yukon at the time of the Klondike gold rush and represented the Dominion government there in the gold commission.

Oil Companies Opposed
In the Yukon, Mr. Pattullo was unsuccessful by a margin of a little more than a hundred votes.

Oil companies opposed him because of his action in trying to reduce the price of gasoline. His friends insist that he fought in the courts, and the Supreme Court of Canada held in favor of the oil companies.

Close personal friend and supporter of the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier.
In 1917, when union government was effected in Ottawa, Mr. Pattullo stood alongside Sir Wilfrid in opposition to it. He then favored some of his colleagues in the British Columbia cabinet through the step.

This was his first demonstration of opposition to the principle of coalition.
When the Siris Report was brought down and the greatest newspaper campaign in Canadian history was launched to support it, Mr. Pattullo took the stand that the centralization of power at Ottawa was against all the principles of the Liberal Party and that if the report was implemented, the loss of revenue, with corporation income taxes taken from the provinces, the growth and expansion of British Columbia would be brought to a standstill.

He held that the high living standard of his province could not be maintained on the revenue left to the province.

He argued that British Columbia had been first in the union legislation and could not afford to throw away the living standards established by the legislation.

First in Canada
British Columbia, he pointed out, had been first in all Canada with such legislation as the Dependents' Allowances, Workmen's Compensation and Minimum Wage standards.

This attitude earned the vigorous enmity of financial interests and the newspapers which demanded his retirement.

But Mr. Pattullo came from an old newspaper family in Woodstock, Ont. He was not afraid of the press.

In the recent election, the Conservatives combined with the C.P.F. to bring about his personal defeat.

Price Ceiling Means Squeeze
On Business

That this will destroy in large measure expected profits in existing business operations, as more attention to the Board have argued recently, the Board agreed. The Board said today a two-fold price ceiling to deal with this situation:

1—Business must recognize that the price ceiling means a drastic squeeze from the top on the cost of raw materials. The retail concern right back to the raw material producer; and it must be prepared to work out adjustments itself whereby this squeeze is absorbed as equitably as possible. Business is faced with making immediate economic adjustments wherever possible," said the Board.

2—Wherever it is impossible for the price ceiling to be enforced, the ceiling to be absorbed by business, the government will subsidize raw materials costs to permit all stages of production and distribution to operate within the ceiling.

The board's statement of principles did not promise to salvage business and the business that is endangered by the ceiling policy, but it will undertake to see that the material enterprise is not forced to the wall. The board's statement was plainly that every business must go to the utmost in operating under the ceiling before it can get assistance in getting it.

Used business firms to get ready with accurate profit and loss statements as of November 30 before they asked the board to deal with special cases.

SHOULDER SOME COST

The agency for subsidizing raw materials and imports will be the new Community Price Stabilization Corporation headed by Hector B. McKinnon, former chairman of the War Prices Board. Through this corporation, the government will undertake to shoulder some of the cost, by way of subsidy, of keeping prices down.

The situation looks down to this: The price ceiling goes into effect with full force on Dec. 1. Business must adjust itself to the ceiling, absorb it, and the raw material is on the firing line and must observe the price ceiling, but the War Prices Board may intervene to order the manufacturer or the wholesaler, the manufacturer or the importer, to cut his price to all this, but not until and if the supply of an essential commodity begins to fail, the government will subsidize procurement of raw materials.

The most important proposition to be noted:

1—If the supply of non-essential commodities is to be guaranteed, the public has then goodbye for the duration of the war.

2—If the supply of essential commodities is to be guaranteed, the quality of goods, the board will see to it.

Halkirk Airman

Wins D.F.M. For Courage in War

By WILLIAM STEWART

LONDON, Nov. 21.—(CP)—Three British airmen have been awarded the Distinguished Flying Medal (D.F.M.) for their gallant service in the Royal Air Force.

The three airmen are: Captain J. H. Halkirk, who was awarded the D.F.M. for his gallant service in the Royal Air Force.

PO. Warring Land Jennings, 20, who was awarded the D.F.M. for his gallant service in the Royal Air Force.

Canadian Air Force of Hamilton, Ont., receives the Distinguished Flying Medal.

RESIDENT OF HALKIRK

Sgt. Stephen Robert Frost, a native of Vancouver, and Sgt. Harold Alan Taylor, of Halifax, N.S., receive the Distinguished Flying Medal.

Taylor, 23, member of the R.C.A.F., was a clerk before he joined the R.C.A.F. in 1940. He was an air observer. He flew with his squadron during attacks on Berlin, France, and Italy.

The citation credited him with achieving an "extremely high standard as navigator" and with bringing back night photographs of his targets.

"He has always shown great coolness and courage in the face of the enemy," the citation added, "and has been a most valuable member of his crew."

through the desert to him the enemy in British strategy and moves were plainly stated by Prime Minister Churchill in his speech to the House of Commons today.

He said that the British were not taking to the sea, but that they were taking to the air, and that the British were taking to the air.

"If, in this case, enemy armored units are destroyed or seriously delayed, the British will be in a position to take the offensive."

The depth of the British sweep has not yet become apparent. It is not impossible that an attempt will be made to drive west from the desert to the sea.

The British advance last February. Such an operation would be difficult and hazardous, but it is not impossible that it will be attempted.

Three Choices

In that case, the British would have three choices to make. They would have to choose between three courses of action.

1—If the British choose to continue their drive towards Tripoli, they would have to choose between two courses of action.

2—If the British choose to continue their drive towards Tripoli, they would have to choose between two courses of action.

Who Wants Safe Streets?

Sixteen persons have been killed this year in traffic accidents on Calgary streets. Edmonton is fortunate in that the accident fatalities here have numbered only three. But good for that, not caution, accounts for much of this favorable difference. Hit-and-run incidents have been more common than in former years—and usually with a bad luck which is the victim of a hit-and-run driver is not killed.

That fatalities have been fewer here than in the southern cities is due to the fact that Edmonton drivers on the streets are not as safe as they should be. They never will be normally safe unless drivers who need a warning from an accident in which they are involved go uncaught and unpunished. The police of course are loudly blamed for not running up the hit-and-run driver but what about those who fail to help the police identify an offender?

Not many traffic mishaps occur in which only the driver knows what has happened or who was involved. Those who have such knowledge but keep it to themselves, and thereby make the guilty party, are no less degree less culpable than the driver who leaves a victim lying on the road. Those who would help the streets to be safe should help to make them safe.

Another Hess Guess

Premier Stain thinks Hess flew to Scotland as a crumb in hope that he could induce Britain and the United States to join Germany in a "holy" war against Soviet Russia. Stain thought Hess would be a good deal for Nazi strategy; and the Nazi mind does seem capable of believing all non-Axis peoples to be unfathomably stupid. In any case, all Hess accomplished was to change his place of residence, for which he may have no regrets.

Commenting on the result, the Russian Premier says: "Not only did Britain and America not join the campaign against Germany, but they have joined the country, but on the contrary found themselves in the same camp as the Soviet Union against Hitlerite Germany."

That is hardly the correct way of putting it, though the practical result is the same. Britain and the United States did not "find" themselves in the anti-Hitler camp. They were there first. Britain helped establish the camp, and the United States promptly joined it while Russia was still non-belligerent on the other side. It was Russia which "found" itself driven into the camp—on the 22nd of June last.

Pétain Surrenders

General Weygand has been dismissed from the command of the Vichy forces in Algeria, where he seems to have held also authority over French North and West Africa. His dismissal was made on orders from Berlin. Of this there can be no doubt, for Weygand was the only remaining colleague Pétain could trust. He was a personal friend as well. What bribe or threats were used to deprive the aged Marshal of his sole standby, even if probably a bribe, is not known.

It is known that for months the Nazi bullies at Paris have been demanding the removal of Weygand and conspiring to bring it about, with able assistance of the Darlan fifth column at Vichy. Why they wanted his official head is not known. Weygand would not allow French Africa to turn to be used as a base for an attack upon Egypt, nor ports there as bases for Axis aircraft and submarines. He had to be got rid of before the long-projected drive through Spain toward the Nile could be undertaken, or Tunisia used as a springboard for troops smuggled across from Italy by way of Sicily.

With Weygand out of the way, there will be no surprise if Axis forces make their appearance in Tunisia forthwith. What further military "collaboration" may be required to get Pétain out of office is not known, but since he has been compelled to cashier Weygand the inference is that he has made a complete surrender. The war is likely to be hoisted over Dakar any day. And Japan will no longer ask us to go through the formality of asking Vichy when it will up and go to more territory in Indo-China. With Weygand goes the last symbol and presence of Vichy independence.

Libya Again

Those maps of North Africa which now readers study so attentively last winter are due to be hung up and put back into service. British forces are on the move again along the desert coast that skirts the coast of Libya. Barrani, Bardia, Tobruk, Derna, Benghazi, and other well-remembered milestones of Wavell's amazing dash take on new interest and significance from the attempt to make history repeat. It is a far stronger force that is now rolling westward across Cyrenaica than Wavell had at his disposal; and a more formidable foe has to be dealt with than the enemy which Cyrenaica commanded and lost. The Axis forces may not be more numerous, but they are composed largely of German mechanized divisions. Hard fighting is in prospect, and it can hardly be supposed the enemy will be knocked out in six weeks, as happened a year ago.

A main objective is to draw Axis strength from the Russian front, particularly air strength. The Luftwaffe must now fight major air battles in two widely separated theatres, besides meeting the unceasing British air offensive in Germany itself and in the western occupied zones. Hard fighting is now a reality.

There no doubt has been hope at Berlin that the drive toward the Nile to either send help to the Russians or to remain inactive. Instead, it has launched an all-out drive against Rommel's holding army in Libya. London evidently has no misgiving that the Russians will be able to take care of the Caucasus situation, which they will be better able to do if the Nazi armies have to be diverted in large numbers to North Africa.

The direct object of course is to clear the enemy out of Libya, and secure bases there from which to bomb Italian ports and industrial centres. As General Cunningham is said to have as large and well-equipped an army as could be used in desert conditions, in which only the driver knows what has happened or who was involved. Those who have such knowledge but keep it to themselves, and thereby make the guilty party, are no less degree less culpable than the driver who leaves a victim lying on the road. Those who would help the streets to be safe should help to make them safe.

The army of the Nile, it is said, now comprises the 2nd and 4th divisions, both of which were in the desert when the British entered the country. The 2nd division, which was the main body, was a mix of British and Indian troops. The 4th division, which was the main body, was a mix of British and Indian troops.

The business community of Edmonton suffers a heavy loss, and a promising figure disappears from the business life of the province, through the death of Mr. John Gillespie. The city has lost also an outstanding citizen, who interested himself in the community along many lines, and whose advice and assistance were always available where the welfare of the city or of the needy were involved.

Edmonton Is Not A "Friendly City"

No Provision Made For Making Visiting Farmers Welcome in This City

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor, Bulletin:—I have noticed that Edmonton calls itself the "Friendly City" and I have been wondering just how they justify this name.

Without making any ill-natured criticism, I must say that there was a considerable amount of truth in one or two references which have been made to the enforcement of the parking law in this city, which seems to take on the appearance at times of a trap for the unwary farmer. The Village News made quite a few telling remarks in this connection that were absolutely justified.

Surely Edmonton recognizes that she is an agricultural centre, depending for her very creation and existence on the merits of the surrounding country. As the country has been improved and grown productive, so has Edmonton's wealth and revenue increased, and yet to me there seems to be a lack of friendly hospitality by the city to the countryside, which is hard to understand.

True we farmers are often given to you an idea of the advantage of certain bargains, which of course implies the expense of our money and our time. There is very little provision for parking space, except by private enterprise on the part of some of our individual stores. Officially there is no evidence of a welcome at all, and yet the city has recent property which would do splendidly for this purpose.

It seems also that if the city really realized its responsibilities and also its opportunities, it would consider it a large free parking lot adjacent to a large free parking lot, which would be something of an asset to the city.

Asshattering Verdict

Editor, Bulletin: I am astonished and surprised by the verdict rendered by the coroner and jury in the tragic accident which occurred at Lacombe, Centre, Alberta, last night, when three young men all eighteen years of age were killed instantly while walking on the west side of the highway.

Facts brought out at the second inquest have shown that the three young men, not blinded by the north going car was the excuse given. The evidence as given at the inquest shows that the car was the north bound car which was supposed to blind the driver of the death car did not have good light at all and certainly not bright.

The north bound car passed the boys eighty to one hundred feet before he met the death car. After the impact of the collision the death car was thrown two hundred and twenty-five feet before stopping. According to the Highway Act, the driver of the death car was guilty of negligence. The brake test according to the R.C.M.P. showed that the car was pumped twice to get brake pressure when the car was at a standstill.

The coroner's statement to the jury before they left to make their decision—These three boys were on the wrong side of the road, but the highway was not wide enough to allow them to be on the right side of the road. The death car was travelling two hundred and twenty-five feet before it was stopped. The death car was travelling two hundred and twenty-five feet before it was stopped.

"For Whom The Bell Tolls"

Three lives could have been saved in spite of the fact they were walking on the wrong side of the road, and a tragedy avoided which has brought life-long sorrow to the parents of these boys and a loss to the highway.

The jury did add a rider to have police check lights on cars and warn pedestrians to walk on the proper side of the highway, but why not have ensured the driver and the licensee away for a period of time, but instead of this having a warning driver who over drive their vision and having their cars under power control at all times, it would have a tendency to place no restriction on drivers who are reckless as they would get off anyhow.

A repetition of this system was seen a week later on the same highway, a few miles farther north when a soldier was killed in a similar manner. Unless we have more and stronger laws like British Columbia, where car drivers have to take an examination before they operate a car and continual checking of brakes and lights and speed will continue to bear the brunt of just such traffic accidents as above, and continue to have life and property destroyed.

It is in a democratic country that we still live in a democratic country that when people make mistakes by walking on the wrong side of the road they are not to be killed by reckless car drivers, who have no thought but speed and driving to the common danger. Then when such drivers cause avoidable damage the law should be enforced to the extent of just such traffic accidents as above, and continue to have life and property destroyed.

While I quite realize that these lives are taken and it is too late to help them, we can do all in our power to prevent them. The drivers who cause such a big toll every day of life and property.

Axix Not Impressed With U. S. Repeal

Opposition to Amendment Is Not Heartening to Foes of Adolf Hitler

By HAROLD L. WEIR

A careful study of the reaction in Europe to the repeal of the American neutrality law is heartening to the friends of Hitler. Congress was so long in making up its mind to authorize armed merchantmen to sail through combat zones and modified the American policy by such a narrow margin that this momentous about-face in American policy is exercising a much less pronounced influence abroad than it has here.

Has section 2, 3 and 6 of the Neutrality Act been repealed more promptly and with more vigor by the Congress than by the majority, the totalitarian powers would have had to make some of their ideas about America. The repeal of the American policy is exercising a much less pronounced influence abroad than it has here.

Miss-Cut Linette Ensemble

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX
A daughter of Midwestern, the well-known fashion prophet and style authority is equally well known as a hostess in New York. She says there isn't any hidden secret to the success of her menus: "It's just a question of serving simple, hearty, well-seasoned meals."

ROAST VEAL with BROWN SAUCE
(Serves 4 to 6)
Three and one-half pounds joint of veal, 1 cup tending fat, 2 carrots, 1 heaping tablespoonful of butter melted, salt, pepper, 1 cup of raisins, 1 tablespoonful of vinegar, 2 tablespoonful of flour, 1 teaspoonful of sugar, 1 teaspoonful of butter, 1 teaspoonful of lemon juice.

Cover the joint of veal thoroughly with the tending fat, then place it in a deep meat pan, seasoning it with salt and pepper to taste. Slice the carrots and place them around the meat. Pour the melted butter over the meat. Cook 40 minutes, turning the roast until it is evenly browned on all sides. Then cover with the sauce, made by melting the butter in a saucepan, stirring in the flour and cooking this combination until brown, then adding the raisins, sugar, vinegar, and lemon juice, mixing thoroughly, and allowing to simmer until the veal is soft.

SAUERKRAUT with APPLES
(Serves 4 to 6)
Two pounds of sauerkraut, 4 tablespoons of oil, 4 apples, 2 potatoes, 1 teaspoonful of caraway seed, 1 onion, sliced, 3 tablespoonful of water, salt, sugar, 1 egg, 1 onion and quarter the cabbage, then place with sauerkraut in an earthenware casserole, garnishing with sliced onion and adding the oil and water. Cover the casserole and cook on a medium flame until sauerkraut and apples are tender. Pare the potatoes and slice, adding to the sauerkraut and apples. Simmer until the veal is soft.

Sunday's Menu
Breakfast: Sliced oranges, boiled eggs, wholewheat muffins, marmalade, coffee, milk.
Dinner: Roast veal with raisins, sauerkraut, potatoes, sauerkraut with apples, rice, bread, cranberry sauce, coffee, milk.
Supper: Chopped chicken and vegetable salad, baking powder biscuits, honey, rice, fruit bowl, sugar, coffee, tea, milk.
